

September's gone, October's here
The end of Covid is nowhere near.
To meet again we might have to search
For our hall is now a temporary church!

Shop once a week is what they say
And I walk around the park each day
So now I know how a hamster feels
Going round and round in a tiny wheel!

The trees I saw came into leaf
Those same trees now go back to sleep
The birds have fledged and left the nest
Now their parents can have a rest.

The garden weeds, they keep on growing
The grass too still needs some mowing
My house I got so very clean
Needs doing again, or so it seems

But sad that it is, the summer's gone
Look on the bright side, spring will come along
